ABOUT NORGHA

NORGHA (Northern Ghana Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights Conference for Young People) is one of Northern Ghana's leading youth engagement platforms, convening young people aged 15-35, government institutions, civil society, development partners, and the private sector to advance youth health, leadership, gender equality, and economic empowerment.

Since 2017, the conference has created a safe space for dialogue, skills development, advocacy, and community engagement around SRHR issues impacting young people across Ghana. Through youth-led programming, institutional collaboration, and growing public visibility, Northern Ghana's Sexual and Reproductive Health and Rights Conference for Young people (NORGHA) has evolved into an ecosystem platform for driving social impact and meaningful youth participation.

This is a quiet revolution. It is proof of the transformative power unleashed when resources and decision-making are placed directly in the hands of young people.
—Mohammed Awal Alhassan,
NORSAAC Executive Director

The intentionality was key for me. Everything about the conference from the food, conference materials, stationery, and resource persons, we supported locally-owned businesses, which I didn't even fully realize until later. But looking back, that was an important piece of the experience.
